Note 5:

MIS 6900 - ST: Business Application Tech (CRN 11528): As the Web becomes a standard platform for enterprise computing and e-commerce, most of the business applications developed nowadays are web-based. Web application development is steadily becoming more complex. There is a great need for separating the content from the page design so that content could be modified without changing the layout. Server-side technologies (such as Servlets and JSP) facilitate web applications to be broken down into separate components, which allow different groups to work on different aspects of the application. For example, one group could focus on design of the layout, "look-and-feel" etc. while another group may concentrate on just the content. This course focuses on the fundamentals of web applications as well as the programming technologies and techniques to build them.

OTHER IMPORTANT INFORMATION:

A graduate student, with the approval of departmental adviser, may use a maximum of 12 credits of 4000-4999 courses taken at Oakland University toward a graduate degree (taken from Graduate catalog).
