13	I plan to advance in my current company and work for a news station part time.	4/19/2015 8:12 PM
14	Please do something about the Genocide Awareness. Seeing that thing, even if it such a small amount of time on campus, made me feel very unsafe on campus because I thought you might allow something similar disturbing violent images to be portrayed without my knowledge. I did not appreciate the lack of empathy when I complained that it was a trigger for me and some of my fellow students. Please consider doing something about it, if I hadn't been so close to graduating I would have transferred to another school because of it.	4/19/2015 4:04 PM
15	The professional development events were awesome- it just would have been better if there were some available that were specific to people graduating (how to apply and get into grad school, how to apply/find a job, types of jobs available, etc.)- learning how to create a resume and interview is something that most of us seniors already know about, so it was hard to take away anything new from these workshops.	4/19/2015 3:37 PM
16	Thank you for the great education! I will be returning in the fall for graduate school at Oakland.	4/19/2015 3:11 PM
17	I plan to work for a few years then attend grad school.	4/19/2015 2:16 PM

19	Business Major - Marketing. Official position title is Program Management Coordinator. Will be working for Hutchinson FTS in Auburn Hills. Made the initial connection at OU career fair.	4/19/2015 1:02 PM
20	Please clean up the campus. We have a beautiful campus but with all the construction and just a year of students being on campus it is in poor shape. Nothing looks worse than a dirty, ripped up campus. The roads need some work and there is just so much trash on the grounds, it is honestly pretty depressing to walk by. Please check it out and clean it up. OU needs some loving.	4/19/2015 12:37 PM
21	I am hoping to find in childcare that a BSW student can do. I really want to find my own apartment and begin my life with my significant other. I will go to graduate school sometime in the future.	4/19/2015 11:36 AM

25	More graduation tickets!!	4/19/2015 1:25 AM
26	The mechanical engineering program didn't teach us any practical skills. No real world processes, no common sense, no critical thinking, nothing. Just theoretical nonsense that masquerades as useful knowledge. As a result, a graduate of Oakland will enter a job interview severely deficient in skills and if they can look up from their own shoes long enough to somehow get a job they will likely be relegated to crunching numbers in front of the dimly flickering light of computer monitor, or locked in a figurative basement like an inbred child while creative people around them design and build the world we live in. For this reason I would like to profusely thank Oakland University. I've been a creative and intelligent person my whole life and as a result did not need any help from OU, nor was I susceptible to the brainwashing and soul crushing nature of the class work. I knew from the start that the real world skills and sense that I already possessed were what was going to get me a good career and OU could help by giving me nothing more than a piece of paper that would help me get hired. So that's what I did, I used OU to get that paper, and now I find myself poised and ready to scrape this cut-rate establishment off the bottom of my shoe which I assure you, is an exciting prospect. So I thank OU for crippling my competition as I enter the workforce... or perhaps I should say for crippling the competition when I want to change jobs. I've been working in industry for a year now because in the interview I told them about projects I had worked on things I had built completely outside of OU, and I also told them that OU was a sham and that I never paid attention to the lies and brainwashing (they hired me on the spot). I will receive full time employment with complete benefits when I graduate, but if I want to change jobs at some point in the future it pleases me greatly to know that the competition will be weakened and poisoned by the nonsense that OU filled them with; crippled by academic sepsis. So in short: thanks OU for bilking these poor innocent kids for tens of thousands of dollars by telling them they have what it takes to be good engineers when you were in the position of responsibility to them that they were just good at math and not actually mechanically inclined, I will graciously step over their curled sobbing bodies to that nice 9-5 and 401K. PS: there's a guy in my office who brings in bagels on Friday too, so that's pretty cool	4/18/2015 11:32 PM
27	Prior to graduation, I was hired by FCA (Chrysler) as a regional dealer trainer for the entire southwest. I accepted the job and relocated out to Scottsdale, AZ to begin my career! Thanks, OU, for all of your help!	4/18/2015 11:05 PM
28	I was hoping to do a paid internship.	4/18/2015 11:03 PM
29	OU is extremely difficult school	4/18/2015 10:41 PM
30	The process in which professors are selected to teach at OU should be changed. In my whole time at OU out of all the teachers I had, I only somewhat liked 20% of the professors who taught me. I am not referring to "like" as a person, but as an effective professor, who actually taught effectively. Hire professors who students can understand. Some of the professors' accents are way too heavy for students to understand without having to strain and pay close attention. Some of the professors' office are disgustingly messy. Just because a professor got a PHD from a well-known or respected college doesn't mean they know how to teach. How to study and excel in school is completely different from actually knowing how to teach. Most PHD professors have never had any training on how to teach. A lot of the professors at OU just suck at teaching and then give really hard exams that don't match up the same way to the topics they discuss things in class. In short, I felt like I dumped a ton of money in the water just to get a degree in hopes of getting a white collar job.	4/18/2015 10:33 PM
